- 550 The Satirist; or, Monthly Meteor. 12 vols., 8vo, half calf, very scarce, $17.50. Colored caricatures by Gilray. 1808
- "These remarkable works, published during the early part of this century, prove in the strongest manner the laxity of morals, prevalent during the regency of George IV, and the freedom with which the vices of the great were satirized by the press. They are chiefly filled with the scandal of the day, and abound with revelations of a more or less piquant character, respecting the adventures of the fashionable and political celebrities of the time, of both sexes. They are illustrated with large and elaborate colored caricature plates of the famous Gilray, and are now become very scarce. To the historian of manners they are invaluable."

BOOKS OF EMBLEMS, DEVICES, &c.

Connoisseurs of Old Books are aware of the value and scarcity of the class of Works included under the general title of "BOOKS OF EMBLEMS"—the practice of inculcating the choicest treasures of wisdom in the guise of emblem and allegory, has been a favorite one in the Literature of all nations, and is sanctioned by the frequent examples of it in Holy Writ. In the middle ages, Literature and Art were combined in the production of these Works, and in them we find the designs of Julio Bonasine, Otho Nœnius (the master of Rubens), and many of the great painters of the Italian and Flemish Schools. The most remarkable collection of these choice and recherché Works, was that formerly the Duke of Marlborough's, and dispersed at the sale of the "Whiteknight's Library" (so called from the name of his country seat). It was said that the Duke had, at an immense expense, brought together every known Work of the kind, many of them realized very large prices; and fine copies, with choice, early impressions of the brilliant plates, are every day more and more sought for and difficult to procure. Many of the following are of exceeding rarity:
